Odd. There are two history options saved - the one that works (this is the one that you see in the GUI) and the one that the gtk version uses (which doesn't seem to do anything). You could try deleting your Resources/Options file which will reset both of these.

Global history is the same data that the auto-complete is supposed to search through.

Does it work for you with the 3.0 dev version? (<http://ci.netsurf-browser.org> builds section)

Hotlist menu is something else - the hotlist entries do not display there by default, it only shows the ones in a "Menu" folder within the hotlist (it's not dynamic either, so you'll need to restart NetSurf to see them after you've done this)
