I beg to differ.

Let me clarify my statement. Since I owned, used and liked Dopus Magellan on my classic Amiga, I don't see any point in "me" continuing to work on Dopus4 at this time because I would prefer to contribute to the porting of a program I would rather use.

Fair enough. To each his own. Hopefully someone else feels like taking over, then.

You can set it up on it's own screen with 2 windows (listers) and button bar at the bottom. You can lock the windows in place side by side and the whole thing just looks like a more attractive version of Dopus4.

Yes, I know. I considered that, and actually started to fiddle with it with that intention. But I decided that it wasn't that much more attractive to justify the effort of setting it up just to do what my DOpus 4 already could.

Best regards,
