General advice for anyone trying to track down a nonbooting problem:

As soon as the bootup screen appears hold down ctrl, this is the same as boot into shell in the early startup menu.

Open s:startup-sequence with ed and add 'set echo on' as the first line and save and reboot.

A shell window will open and show you everything that's executed during boot. if the startup sequence finishes reboot and hold down the left shift key. that will disable wbstartup.

With those two you can narrow down where the problem is.
