I would like to have a possibility to start FastView from command line with only one image and the size of the window in which the program will show the image scaled if needed.

With this possibility I can use FastView in the context menu of images so I can open several of them in separate windows to have the possibility to view one next to the other, it's useful when you have many similar pictures and you must choose which one to use for example to put in a web page, or which one to print. I hope I was clear in my request :)
