Found that in morphos build -mlongcall also in use. So, will rebuild everything with it now (damn!). Through, that mean 1.23 will be slower somewhere. Dunno when -mlongcall start to be in use , but till 1.17 there wasn't. But as Fab add it then its all expected, so one more day till binary done as whole recompile starts. But for sure with -mlongcall things going to be slower (google says same). As well as attaching that huge-fat ffmpeg libraries will make loading of binary slower, too, as binary will be bigger.
