I gave Amigawriter a new try on my SAM460

I had previous installs 2.2 68k and PPC 2.2 on my HD (but they were copied over from my other SAM)

- trying to launch the 68k version i got a complaint that wizard.library was not found.

- I then dugged up my CD and tried to install the 2.2 68k version in a new directory

In fact the installer does not seem to give you a choice and installs the 68k version it seems.

I got a grimreaper during install after a choice you have to make about having a graphic card or not. Maybe i made the wrong choice.

Anyway after that i retried the existing 2.2 68k verions form its drawer, and now it started up OK .

The wizard.library was probably copied to libs: during install.

I got a crash though very soon when editing a file;

See something that could cause this ?
