Guys ... yes i know good what means be frustrated for "no software" but only because i think "gosh we have the hardware but not the drivers"

...this is from since 1994 and is a part of Amiga story.

The big problem is during ages people become really bored about and we loose many users and great developers too.

Now we are a small community, and we continue speack about what we know good, "no devs no party".

Right now i can count 20(max) really active developers in our AmigaOS4 community, and we have to say a great thanks to this people who are loosing their personal time and spend it for a dream.

(Sed this dream is becoming age by age more far to be realized)

I make my part buy the software (who some time i dont really need) or make donations for be thay become "more motivated".

now lets stop speack about warp3d who is a classic amiga thing and letz hope the Gallium/mesa will become a reall thing.
